FARISH FIGHTING FOR $200,000 IN STOCKS

Claims Fraud on the Part of Beebe in the Transfer of 24,000 Shares of Stock to a Nevada Corporation.

(Special to Review.) PHOENIX, June 21.—Battling for 24,000 shares of the Cleneguita Copper company's stock, which at present market quotations is valued at $200,000, T. E. Farish began his suit in the district court against George Beebe and others to get the Cleneguita company's affairs placed in the hands of a receiver.

court language and while discussing the case, Farish makes strong allegations of fraud on the part of the present directors of the Cleneguita company, charging that they have purposely set about to defraud him of 24,000 shares of stock.

Judge Kent made an effort this morning to get attorneys J. F. Wilson and Walter Bennett for Farish and Eugene S. Ives for the defendants to come to some understanding that would permit of the appointment of a receiver to take charge, but neither could consent to the other's demands and the hearing began about 11 o'clock.

Bennett and Wilson wanted a hearing to show that a receiver should be appointed for the Arizona corporation, and Ives demanded that no action be taken because the Nevada corporation had not served and was not represented.

Farish in his petition for a receiver alleges that at a stockholders' meeting held in Tucson, Beebe and his associates with the intention of defrauding certain minority stockholders, transferred the books and assets of the Cleneguita Copper company of Arizona to the Cleneguita Copper company of Nevada.

Bennett and Wilson contended this morning that it was not necessary to bring the Nevada corporation into this suit for a receiver, and Ives responded that if all the contentions of the plaintiff were sustained a judgment rendered in their favor, it would not be of any value, for the reason that the Arizona corporation has nothing for a receiver to take in his charge.

Farish's contention is that he is entitled to 24,000 shares of the company's stock because of services he performed for the company in Mexico under contract, but that by juggling and fraud the management of the company has made it appear that he is not entitled to this stock, and has refused to issue it to him.

Beebe was not present at the hearing today, though his wife, Mrs. Geo. Beebe, and Thomas Lewis, a business associate of Beebe, were present and closely followed the proceedings.

Farish states that if the Cleneguita company is placed in the hands of a receiver and the books, assets and records of the company placed in his possession, he will be able to get his 24,000 shares of stock, which he says are worth $200,000 to him.

The only witness examined before noon was Dr. J. W. Ford, a former heavy stockholder in the company.

The purpose of putting him on the stand was to trace the history of the Cleneguita company, which has done business in Mexico, Arizona and Nevada from his recollection to as recent a date as Ford has knowledge of.

Strong and positive allegations of fraud and crooked work are made openly by Farish, who claims that Beebe and his associates are trying to defraud him by unfair means of what he rightfully has.

WHO WROTE THE ORDER IS QUESTION AT ISSUE

Man Charged with Forgery Says Complainant Wrote Signature Himself.

This afternoon a case will come up for trial before Justice Burdick, during the course of which handwriting experts will undoubtedly be called in, as the complainant swore to a complaint charging the defendant with forgery, and the defendant asserts that the plaintiff himself wrote the signature, the question seems to be, who wrote the order? The complaining witness in the case is N. Harris, a miner, and the defendant is Joseph Krilanovich, proprietor of the Brewery-Gleich restaurant.

Yesterday afternoon Harris appeared before Judge Burdick and swore to a complaint charging the defendant with having forged his name to an order for $5, and obtaining value for the same at the Copper Queen store, the amount being deducted from his wages. Krilanovich was arrested and later released on bond to appear this afternoon at 4 o'clock for his hearing.

Krilanovich contends that Harris himself wrote the order, and gave it to him in payment for board. He states that the miner was in the district before and after boarding at his place gave an order which was found to be void when presented at the store for payment. He states that Harris then left the district, but came back a few days ago, and started in to board again at the restaurant, paying for his eating with an order, which Krilanovich presented for payment, and at the same time presented the old order, which had not been paid.

PAINE'S COPPER LETTER.

(Special Wire to Duce & Overlock.) BOSTON, June 21.—The market was again without feature. The little movement in Oceania yesterday was not continued, scattered lots only selling at $127 today. It is seldom safe to say a dull market, and in the present instance we believe stocks are grounding on bottom and should be bought on weak days, however, it may be some time before we have a rally but in the meantime we do not expect to see prices go any lower.

exhibition, at which time the entire company of over 250 animal actors will be seen. The management of these shows claim that this parade is the finest and most novel ever presented with any tented exhibition. There will be over twenty-five dogs and cages of rare and costly animals in it, besides all of the led stock and the famous Bands Rosa. After the afternoon exhibition all the children attending the performance will be given a free pony ride. Over one hundred Shetland ponies will be placed at their disposal. No boy or girl attending these shows will be permitted to leave the tents disappointed. These free rides to the children will not be omitted under any circumstances.

CHARTER LAW IS MOST LOGICAL REMEDY

the power of appointing (the other officials of the city. But while this argument has been urged, the fact has been overlooked that there is full power to remove any councilman who is lax in his duty, virtually amounting to the recall clause which has become popular throughout the country. Neither has it been stated that in Galveston and El Paso, where the same conditions obtain, the results have been most beneficial.

Taking the matter as a whole, although there are several minor points in the new charter law, which may admit of argument, yet the benefits to be derived from its adoption so far outweigh these minor defects that the latter are insignificant, and even these defects can be remedied in the course of the next two years.

With the taxpayers making an active interest in the matter there seems to be but little doubt that the adoption of the various clauses of the new law will lead to a more thorough understanding of it, and ultimately to its adoption and the assurance of a Greater Bisbee.

SAYS WIFE SMOKED CIGARS IN HER BED

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—That his wife smoked cigars in bed and kicked up a rumpus when he failed to cook a good dinner for her were some of the crushing allegations made by William F. Nally yesterday in the Superior Court.

Kress is a prosperous grocer of Pasadena.

For many reasons, which he summarizes in the term "cruelty," Mr. Kress wanted and obtained from his wife, the tall and statuesque Mrs. Emma Kress, who seems equally anxious to be freed from her husband, judging from a voluminous cross-complaint in the possession of her attorney.

What appalling evidence she has gathered against Kress will come out today. Nearly all day yesterday was devoted to the hearing of the husband's side of the story, so Mrs. Kress did not get a chance to say anything.

Many women representing the comfortable bourgeoisie of Pasadena were in court to hear the tale of domestic infidelity. And they were determined to hear it all, for not one of the fair spectators moved as much as an inch when the court announced that "the ladies would be excused." If they thought the testimony were shocking.

One evening, Mr. Kress said, he had prepared for himself a frugal repast consisting of a slice of ham, a cup of tea and bread and butter.

"When my wife found out I had cooked nothing for her," the plaintiff continued, "she threw the ham into one corner, the buttered bread in another and the cup of hot tea in my face."

"Is that all your wife did to you?" counsel asked.

"Well," replied Kress, in a quiet way, she accused me of keeping a blind eye and of being too friendly to terms with her sister."

"Tell us about the sister."

This is where Judge Bordwell gave the women spectators a friendly tip about being excused from remaining in the courtroom.

Kress hesitated a moment.

"On one particular occasion," he recited "she asked me if I had seen my darling sister-in-law. When I admitted having waited upon her at the store she said: 'I really admire your taste, you old noodle. Why, that woman, with her pretty face has not taken a bath in four months!'"

The plaintiff then told of a weird experience he had with his wife one night when he came home from a political meeting at 11 o'clock.

"I found the doors and windows locked," he said, "but managed to climb in through the window of my bedroom after removing the screen. I wasn't in bed five minutes when she knocked at the door. She announced that she was going to make it hot for me for coming home at such a time of the night, and then proceeded to abuse me. She kept it up till half past five in the morning, occasionally going into the yard to throw books and rocks at me through the window. She came near killing me with the screen, one corner of which struck me on the head."

Kress further testified that his spouse was in the habit of calling at the store when he was waiting upon customers, and of demanding cigars and smashing the glassware with a hammer.

"When I brought her dinner to her," he added, "she lit up in two minutes and then called for cigars. Oh, she smoked them like a connoisseur."

During all this testimony Mrs. Kress sat apparently unmoved. An occasional whisper to her attorney and a casual glance of understanding to her women friends, that was all.

TELEGRAPHERS WALK OUT IN 'FRISCO

surprise to those companies, following as it did so close upon the supposed settlement of the differences through United States Commissioner of Labor Nell, and statements made by President Clowry of the Western Union and E. J. Nally, general manager of the Postal. As late as noon today Deputy President J. Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers' union said there would be no strike at San Francisco, and that evidently President Small had had not seen the announcement of the settlement when he announced that San Francisco would quit work today.

The repudiation of the settlement by Mr. Small, therefore, caused surprise to the union officials of this city.

and it was intimated that the National executive board would be called to order immediately to consider the official's action. No official word came from Small, except an interview in which he said the strike was to take place at Oakland and San Francisco. Konenkamp said:

"I have in my pocket a document from Mr. Small giving me full authority to act as president in his absence in official matters, and I approved of the terms of the settlement offered by the Western Union yesterday. The telegraphers in New York will stand by that settlement. We feel that we now have the support of public sentiment, and we shall not sacrifice that by repudiating the agreement. We appreciate the great assistance given us by the government through Mr. Nell, and we shall not stultify ourselves."

Officials of neither the Western Union nor Postal would make a statement tonight. The strike did not develop until after office hours, and neither Clowry nor Nally could be reached. It is stated, however, that the companies now feel that the action of Small at San Francisco absolves them from all obligations under the terms of yesterday's agreement. It is not believed the telegraphers of New York will be involved, at least, just at this time.
